Cuba Role Is Disputed In Belgrade

By David Andelman

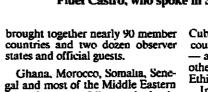

BELGRADE, July 27 (NYT) -A large group of nonaligned nations, which delegates said could amount to more than one-third of the world movement, publicly or privately today demanded Cuban disengagement in Africa, threatening to boycott next year's summit meeting in Havana.

The effect could be to split the movement whose foreign ministers are meeting this week in Belgrade. A number of key delegations, particularly the Yugoslavs, reportedly worked frantically behind the scenes today and into the night to defuse the situation.

But on the floor of the modern Sava conference center and in press conferences throughout the day, delegates lined up firmly on one side or the other of this most volatile issue facing the conference. Many warned of dire consequences of "local conflicts being converted into proxy wars," as Singapore's Foreign Minister S. Rajaratnam

"It is my considered opinion that the third world war has already begun — in the Third World," Mr. Rajaratnam said, setting the tone for the day's public statements.

But there were other, equally bitter exchanges over the past two days of the conference, which has brought together nearly 90 member Cuba has in two principal African countries - Angola and Ethiopia - and the military aid missions in others. Kuwait, for its part, accused Ethiopia of "genocide" in Eritrea.

Although the Cabinet continued today to elaborate details of its plans, the centerpiece was clear — tax cuts totaling 14 billion marks (about $7 billion) over two years. While not revealing how it will be paid for, Mr. Boelling said that agreement has been reached that the government deficit will not exceed 60 billion marks. He also said that the 1978 deficit will not be as high as had been previously thought — a 54.6-billion-mark estimate was included in the budget.

Dealers Livid

Despite his attempts to ease fears about financing in the domestic market, dealers were livid and prices, already under pressure this week from government financing, tumbled again. SEC Probing Citibank On Currency Exchanges

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP-DJ) -The Securities and Exchange Commission has started investigating Citibank in view of allegations that the bank evaded European taxes and violated foreign-exchange laws in certain countries.

Greece, Turkey Reportedly Set Airspace Talks

ANKARA, July 27 (Reuters) — Greece and Turkey are expected to confer on the Aegean airspace issue in Istanbul next week, informed sources said today.

They said that the technical-level

Since the 1974 invasion of Cyprus, Greece has kept the airspace over the Aegean closed to all but its own traffic after declaring the region a danger zone.

Turkish officials maintain that

Greece broke international rules in taking such action, which has meant that planes from Turkey to several Mediterranean countries must make a fuel-consuming de-tour around the Aegean.

4 Arrested in Lyon In Forged-Note Raid

LYON, France, July 27 (Reuters) - Police said they seized forged banknotes with a face value of 4 million francs ($900,000) yesterday and arrested four men who were loading them into a car.

Police had been watching an apartment in which they discovered the forged money and made the arrest when the men turned up. Police said that the suspects were all well-known members of the Lyon criminal underworld.

The testimony by Dr. Landrum dale, Fla., alleged that the experiment be conducted in 1962 at Presbyterian in her effort to have a test-tube baby was "wilfully and capriciously" stopped by Dr. Vande Wiele and the hospital. Dr. Shettles has since retired.

The jury was advised by Judge Charles Steward not to take into consideration the birth of the world's first test-tube baby in England on Tuesday. That birth, the judge said, has "nothing to do with this case."

eggs were removed from Mrs. Del Zio and mixed by Dr. Shettles in a test tube with her husband's sperm. Mrs. Del Zio was unable to have a child naturally because of blocked fallopian tubes.

Offenses included presenting a false passport, trying to cross the border without reporting to immi-gration officials and making false statements. She had been arrested on July 16 in Alburg. Vt., carrying a false Iranian passport as entered from Canada on foot.

She is wanted in West Germany for suspected activities in the So-cialist Patients Collective in Heidelberg. The collective allegedly was a recruiting ground for the Baader-Meinhof urban guerilla group.

The original schedule was slowed by the administration, but the plan still calls for a pullout this year of about 3,400 Americans, including 800 combat troops.
Sen. Percy said the withdrawal could generate temptations for North Korea to invade the South. He and other senators cited evi-dence of a large buildup of military strength along the northern edge of the Demilitarized Zone within easy striking distance of Seoul. As approved, the amendment reflected not only that concern but a fear that the entire military balance in Asia — in what Sen. Jacob Jav-its. R-N.Y., called "the critical triangle" of Korea, Japan and Taiwan, might disintegrate.

The nonbinding amendment de-clared that the president should report to Congress on the effects of any proposed withdrawal on "pre-serving deterrence" in Korea, the probable effect on North Korean plans, implications for South Korea to develop an "independent nuclear deterrent," and on the complex set of military and economic relation-ships involving the United States, Japan, China and the Soviet Union. It was the second consecutive day that the Senate spelled out in an amendment affecting Asian policy the need for prior consultation between the White House and Congress. A similar caveat was written Tuesday into a provision of the for-eign military aid bill involving the U.S.-Taiwan mutual defense treaty.

It noted that the United States and Taiwan have been linked by this treaty since 1954 and said the Taiwan government had "faithfully and continually carried out its du-ties and obligations." It added that the president must consult the Senate before making any changes in

This was in anticipation of an eventual decision by the United States to cut ties with Taiwan and establish full diplomatic relations with China.

In Its First Interpretation of the Bakke Ruling

U.S. Backs Detroit Police Black Promotion Quota

By Steven V. Roberts

Gept

WASHINGTON, July 27 (NYT) - In its first official interpretation of the U.S. Supreme Court's Bakke decision, the Justice Department yesterday urged approval of an affirmative-action program that sets strict numerical quotas for the promotion of blacks in the Detroit Police Department.

The court's decision last month did not require public agencies to be "color-blind," the department argued, and did not disturb previous rulings that required such agencies to take positive steps to remedy the effects of past discrimination.

The department's comments were made in a friend-of-the-court brief filed with the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, in a suit by the Detroit Police Officers Association against Detroit's mayor, Coleman Young. In that case, white police

The allegations were transmitted to the bureau in 1973 by an informer who told the St. Louis agent that Russell Byers, a former auto parts dealer, had said that he was offered $50,000 in 1966 or 1967 to arrange the murder of Dr. King.

The agent whom FB1 officials refused to identify, was said to have prepared a report containing the information, placing one copy in a file on the informer and another in a file on Mr. Byers. To Protect Individual Privacy

U.S. Renews Computer Security

By Marjorie Hunter

WASHINGTON, July 27 (NYT) - The Carter administration will move next week to tighten security over the federal government's network of computers to protect individual privacy and to prevent fraud

The security orders will be issued by the Office of Management and Budget, which has fiscal and policy control over government computer operations. A copy of the docu-ment was obtained yesterday by

The New York Times.

In its directive, the OMB will order the Commerce Department to compile security standards and guidelines, the General Services Administration to set regulations. for physical security of computer rooms and the Civil Service Commission to determine the extent of screening and background checks on computer personnel.

Increasing Concern

The move comes at a time of increasing concern over lack of safeguards in some computer opera-tions of the government, the world's largest user of computers.

For instance, the General Ac-counting Office, an investigative arm of Congress, reported earlier this month that the Social Security Administration's financial and medical files on millions of Americans "are not properly safeguarded from potential loss, destruction, abuse or misuse."

The accounting office also re-ported in recent years that its audi-tors had found 69 computer-related crimes involving introduction of fraudulent records into computer systems, issuance of fraudulent hecks, unauthorized use of facilities and alteration or destruction of information files. There have been numerous complaints in Congress over the ready availability of some government computer data, a situation that these critics say constitutes an inva-sion of an individual's privacy.

Broad Availability

Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., a co-author of the Federal Privacy Act of 1974, last week criticized what he termed the "too broad" availability of personal data from Veterans Administration files.

The federal government uses nearly 10,000 computers in processing tax returns; issuing welfare and Social Security checks, federal grants, farm subsidies and veterans benefits; issuing savings bonds; predicting crop levels; processing intelligence; compiling labor statis-tics and census data; controlling space missions; compiling crime data and maintaining records on

President Carter has approved Mr. Solomon's decision to oust Mr. Griffin, the sources said, a move that could hurt relations between the president and House Speaker Thomas O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., who is a close friend and patron of Mr. Griffin, a long-entrenched GSA

Reacting to federal and internal investigations that have disclosed widespread corruption inside the GSA, Mr. Solomon has been trying in recent months to take more effective control over the sprawling agency, which spends $5 billion a year to provide federal workers with offices and supplies.

But Mr. Solomon told the White House, according to the sources, that he has not been able to work his will within the agency because GSA employees have been unsure whether he or Mr. Griffin is really in charge.

Mr. Griffin, 61, is a 35-year GSA veteran who has established his own base of power, especially because of his contacts in Congress. Mr. Solomon was named GSA administrator a little over a year ago. Rep. O'Neill had unsuccessfully sought to have President Carter select Mr. Griffin to head the agen-

Grounding the Air Cartel

The International Air Transport Association (IATA). the air fare cartel, recently opened the door a crack to competition. It will no longer require airlines to participate in collective rate-setting to enjoy its essential housekeeping and clearinghouse services. The decision is less an endorsement of competition than a reluctant admission of division among carriers flying the Atlantic. It does not guarantee that fares will henceforth be determined in the marketplace; most airlines remain deeply suspicious of free enterprise. The task of putting an end to IATA's price-fixing for once and all is still up to the U.S. government.

International airlines have always had difficulty agreeing on a common fare policy for the heavily traveled North Atlantic routes. But they have generally managed to compromise, leaving travelers to face a uniform fare structure. IATA's committees even tried to manage the width of the seats, the size of the drinks and the price of the movies. Fare regulation started to break down with the challenge of charter flights, from which the regular airlines were barred. It collapsed when British and U.S. authorities agreed to let Laker Airlines - no friend of the cartel begin standby service between New York and London at rock-bottom rates.

The big carriers insisted on matching Laker's prices and a scramble for new passengers began. Travelers may be bewildered by the price and service choices, but competition has worked to fill empty seats and to

Celebration, however, is premature. Cartel agreements continue to dominate fares on most other international routes and hard times could bring them back to the North Atlantic. That is why rate changes, now contemplated by the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board to bar cartel pricing altogether, are so

Under our anti-trust laws, price agreements among airlines that serve this country are legal only when the board approves. In the past, IATA members have received automatic permission to discuss rates among

There is no reason, however, why the board could not demand that every carrier set its prices independently, just as the Justice Department insists that other, unregulated firms do.

Many airlines see decartelization as the shortest path to ruin. But recent experience has shown how hollow the opposition to air competition really is. Low-fare packages have opened travel opportunities to millions. And by filling planes that used to depart half empty, the discounts have raised profits. The threat that foreign governments would toss away millions in taxpayers' money to undercut private U.S. carriers has not materialized.

The one serious argument against grounding IATA is political, not economic. All governments retain the right to regulate fares on international flights. In the past they have usually allowed their national carriers to represent their interests in IATA and then accepted the compromises reached in airlineto-airline bargaining.

But if IATA ceases to set rates, the chances are that governments will be forced to negotiate directly with each other, raising their disagreements to diplomatic contests. So if IATA's demise were merely to remove a convenient buffer among governments that still insist on fixing air fares, little would have been gained.

Chairman Alfred Kahn of the CAB is wisely pressing, therefore, for agreements that other governments will stay out of ratesetting. The Dutch and the Israelis have already made their peace with competition, and there is hope that West Germany will, too. Should Europe's premier economic power choose competition in return for the right to land Lufthansa jets wherever it chooses in the United States, it is generally expected that the rest of Western Europe will have to follow suit.

The coincidence of IATA's internal difficulties, the rising disaffection with big government in the United States and the strong interest in deregulation is too important to ignore. High fares and low profits have demonstrated for decades that no one benefits from IATA's restrictions.

question of wage and price controls keeps bobbing up. Consumer prices in the six months through May rose at an annual rate of 9.4 percent. Once again, food prices have been recently leading the way. Why not invoke controls again?

The answer is that they did serious damage the last time the country tried, in 1971-73 and the effects are still visible. President Carter has flatly ruled out controls, and he's right. One reason is the adamant opposition of the labor unions, who learned that it is easier to control wages than prices. But the controls also conveyed other lessons that are worth recalling now.

In any competitive industry, price controls tend to favor the biggest corporations with the broadest financial resources. Take the example of automobiles. Under the Nixon administration's controls, a company could usually pass through rising costs of production — unless that raised its profits above a certain margin. The biggest automakers, General Motors and Ford, were denied price increases because their profits were in good' shape. Chrysler and American Motors, with lower profits, were granted price increases. But that left those two smaller companies with an excruciating dilemma. If they raised prices, they damaged their ability to compete with GM and Ford. If they did not raise prices, they had to absorb their steadily rising production costs. Either way, they were weakened in relation to the bigger and richer companies. Moral: controls are bad for competition.

Controls do queer things to investment and production. Throughout the 1960s, oil and gas drilling had slowly declined in this country. The turn-around came in 1972 when controls were in effect. The steel companies

With the current surge of inflation, the had regarded drilling pipe as a minor product. They made it on aging equipment, and profit margins were low. When orders for new pipe began to pick up, the steel companies had little incentive to make more of it. The result was a wild scramble among drillers for pipe, and something very much like a black market appeared. Drilling costs shot upward much faster than the general inflation rate, and kept going even after controls expired. Moral: Price controls can sometimes be, paradoxically, more inflationary than no controls.

For consumers, it's the inflation in food prices that is the most immediately painful. But food prices are the hardest for a government to control. Housewives' demonstrations against the high cost of beef, in early 1973, induced the White House to put ceilings on meat prices. Some stock raisers held animals off the market to wait out the controls. Others exported their cattle, mainly to Canada.

Two morals here: First, a country can't maintain price controls unless it is also prepared to curb exports, which in turn damage foreign markets and violate trade agreements. Second, controls create shortages. The disappearance of beef from the stores turned. customers to fish and poultry in such numbers that they were soon in shortage as well. At that point a lot of people began to fear a looming nationwide shortage of food in general. To head off a public panic, the administration was forced to drop the controls.

Controls are tolerable only for very short periods, in emergencies. The Carter administration knows that working down the current inflation is going to take a long, long time. It is relying mainly on exhortation, persuasion and, increasingly, cuts in federal spending. That isn't very dramatic, and it doesn't produce quick results. But it's better than the alternative.

Results From Summit

The heads of the states and government who met in Bonn will hardly have hoped seriously that they would find easy answers to questions they had already failed to solve previously. Their daily responsibilities prevent them from putting international interests before their own domestic ones, and they must always reckon with the possibility of setbacks at home. On the other hand, none of the countries represented at Bonn is in a position to solve current economic problems single-handed. Concerted action is essential. So although the practical results of the summit may have been meager, the important gain was the way the individuals concerned were able to discuss their problems in an atmosphere of mutual confidence.

The Carter government has made a specialty of zigzags, and an inter-esting one occurred in April. China came back after eight months on the back burner. Mr. Carter said on April 11 that he hoped "within months" to "completely realize" the goal of full diplomatic relations with Peking that was set out in the Chinese-U.S. Shanghai commu-nique of 1972. Since then a whole pack of low-order Chinese cards have hit the table.

Warm Visit

Zbigniew Brzezinski paid a warm visit to Peking, said that the United States wanted to encourage a "strong and secure China," and that "the United States has made its mind" to normalize ties. The United States, reversing previous. policy, approved the sale to China of geological survey technology that it won't permit sold to the Soviet Union because of possible military use. Mr. Carter spoke of "worldwide common hopes that we share with the Chinese." Assistant Secretary of State Richard Hol-brooke in Hawaii spoke of the U.S-Japan-China grouping in terms almost of an alliance. A nuclearpowered aircraft carrier, the Enterprise, has even been lying about in Hong Kong harbor as a gesture to spur Chinese nerves in the face of Soviet naval presence

And one of the most senior groups of U.S. government scientists every to visit a foreign country is in Peking for talks with Chinese counterparts. It is led by Dr. Frank Press, science advisor to President

A zig — or was it a "Zbig"? — took place in April for two reasons, and it is their combination that gives the Chinese card a special interest just now. A victory for the Panama Canal treaties then seemed assured - this bears on the Taiwan problem (via domestic politics) which is the one obstacle to full diplomatic ties between Washing-ton and Peking And in April, alarm about the Soviet role in Africa began to grow — this bears on the strategic aspect of Chinese-U.S.

In the past, the Taiwan part of China policy and the Russian part had alway seemed to pull against each other. Normalize with Peking, some doves said. Tilt to China against Russia, some hawks said. But no-one wanted to do both. Indeed many people saw the two as an either/or proposition.

But when Brzezinski climbed the Great Wall of China in May (and quipped to his Chinese host: "Last one to the top opposes the Russians in Ethiopia") the strategic aspect of caught up for the first time with the historical aspect - that is, the lingering two-China situation.

Brzezinski stated in Peking that "friendship and normalization" between China and the United States are "vital and beneficial to world

The Carter government has ap-parently decided that a step-by-step normalizing of relations with Peking is essential to making the U.S.-China flank of the triangle a solid fact of life. If that bothers Mr. Bre-zhnev, so be it. The Kremlin did not worry about "upsetting" the United States when it walked hand in hand with China in the 1950s. Did that friendship reduce Soviet influence with President Eisenhower? Of course not; it added to it. But nor did it stop a dawning real-ization in the Soviet Union and the United States that both have to share the planet in businesslike ways. The same will be true - with highest military officer touched off the shoe on the other foot — into a controversy in London last the 1980s. Mr. Brezhnev undermonth by saying in Peking that the stands the Chinese card. It's time

What playing the Chinese card should mean is making the tie with Peking as full and interlocking as that with Moscow. At present it is not. Without diplomatic ties - to take one aspect - many things that ought to happen can't. U.S. businessmen lose orders to Japan and West Europe; media, banks, students cannot be resident in Peking; Chinese leaders won't visit Washington and so they still do not know America first-hand; the list is a long one.

Detente with both Red Giants is the best policy for the United States. Of course, this means ongo-ing tensions with both. But it also ans, especially while the Soviet-Chinese flank of the triangle remains the chilliest of the three flanks, maximum influence for the United States. And should the Soviet Union and China draw nearer together, the damage to the United States would be minimized if by then Washington enjoys evenhanded, fully engaged ties with both the Dragon and the Bear.

There is one more point. Because China is weaker than the Soviet Union, and far less of a threat to U.S. interests, a short-term tilt toward China is logical. This is not based on any preference for Chinese society over Russian, but is simply the best way to maximize U.S. leverage.

It was quite right to allow sensitive geological technology to China but not to the Soviet Union. And it would be blind not to notice, and appreciate, that China and the United States have parallel views of

The French economy, though was first centralized at the end of the 17th century by Colbert, under Louis XIV. The system was modernized and extended by Napoteon, and has acver since fahered. The evidence would suggest that the French actually like, it. They of course invariably talk of the tyranny of Paris, the beauties of decentralization and regionalization, the need for administrative reform—but in 300 years no one has done but in 300 years no one has done anything effective to make a basic change in the system.

System Works

The system in fact works very well. Even the French economic well. Even the French economic "miracle" of the last quarter-century was managed with state intervention and planning. It took what before the war had been a country with, by the standards of its neighbors, a minor industrial plant dominated by backward family firms. It may, of course, be hardest of all on Barre himself. Polls now have 52 percent of the public more or less discontented with his poliand turned it into Western Europe's second industrial power, arguably its most modern, and its fastest-growing (even after 1973, during the recession, the French spare from its internal quarrels, are both on the attack against Barre. Rumors have it that Barre will not economy continued to grow at twice the speed of West Germany). For Prime Minister Barre to set out now to undo centralized control of this economy is a big ambition; he try's worst performers — and take the blame for it — and then will be dropped by President Valery Gis-has his work cut out. But those who think that Giscard d'Estaing will abandon Barre when trouble comes over prices and un-employment may well be wrong. Giscard d'Estaing certainly understands what Barre is up to The president, a former minister of finance, is in economic matters probably the most sophisticated chiefs of state. Barre is moving France towards the liberal economic model West Germany follows. And Giscard d'Estaing's own ideas on the economy, and on the problems France shares with West Germany, were shown in recent days by the joint West German-French proposal for European monetary cooperation put forward at the Bremen meeting of Europe's lead-

On the face of it, a plan for linked West European currencies and a big joint fund to stabilize their exchange rates would seem to benefit West Germany most. It Il would mean all-European cooperation to resist upward pressure on liling the Deutsche mark, and the constquent damage revalutation does to West Germany export competitiveness. France would not seem to gain as much, since any tie to the powerful Deutsche mark puts pres-. sure on French export prices as well, and also demands deflation ary domestic policies. Yet Giscard d'Estaing seems even more deeply committed to the plan than Chancellor Schmidt.

France today wants a solid and _stable currency. This is a matter of prestige and also of economi principle. The French in the past have ... consistently sought a strong currency. And in fact the franc today is quite strong. It's earlier weakness is -better explained as a result of the political worries of investors and money-managers before the March elections than by any objective eco-

Currency strength has become an element in perceived international strength; thus it bestows political as well as economic authority. This French government is willing to pay a considerable price to get a strong franc, tied solidly to the Deutsche mark and other Europe la J. an currencies, able to defend against the dollar's vagaries, and even to rival the dollar.

Behind the monetary plan, just as behind Barre's reforms, there lies commitment to extrememly orthodox economics. The explanation for this prudence is the apprehen-sion now widely felt in Western Europe that difficult times are coming, and that the world is moving towards protectionism (real of disguised) and an even more savagely competitive pursuit of national in-terest and advantage. The question for the French today is whether the radical internal measures of Prime Minster Barre are the right preparation for the expected test.

Hong Kong Traffic, Population Make City Noisiest in the World

HONG KONG, July 27 (UPI) — Hong Kong has been proved to be the noisiest city in the world. And there is no escape from it for most of the 4.5 million residents of the world's most densely populated territory of more than 200 square miles, said Norman Ko, a senior researcher in the Mechanical Engineering Department of the University of Hong Kong.

On a sound meter, noise in any part of urban Hong Kong from 6 a.m. to midnight reaches an average level comparable to having a jetliner flying just a few hundred feet overhead. People are not as sensitive to the city din as they are to the shrill scream of a jet, Mr. Ko said, because the human ear better tolerates lower sound fre-

But the noise is there, always. And it disturbs sleep and annoys people who live in the urban areas, where population density is greater than 200,000 per square mile, and in some areas, 390,000, Mr. Ko said. "As a whole city. Hong Kong is the noisiest in the world," he said. During the last seven years, a team led by Mr. Ko took soundlevel readings at 258 sites in the urban areas. At each site, a 11/2hour recording was made 3 feet from the curb. The average mean noise level in all built-up areas - residential, commercial and industrial zones - was 75 decibels. The average maximum level was $2 decibels. While this has not yet reached a dangerous stage (noise at 90 decibels for eight hours a day would impair hearing), it is higher than the noise levels of seven other major cities.

According to published data, Mr. Ko said, the average noise level in New York is 66; downtown Manhattan, 75; London, 62; Duesseldorf, 63; downtown Madrid, 75; downtown Rome, 76; Tokyo, 57, downtown Tokyo, 64.

Fanny Delbrice plays Leonide and Raymond Acquaviva is Agis in "Le Triomphe de l'Amour."

Marivaux's Marionettes Come to Life

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss

PARIS, July 27 (IHT) — The latest Comedie-Française production is "Le Triomphe de l'Amour," which has never been a popular play of Mariyaux. Much neglected since its 1732 premiere at the Theatre Italien, it has had only two previous professional revivals in Paris during this century. Xavier de Courville's adventuresome troupe staged it in 1912 and more than 40 years passed before it was tried again — by Jean Vilar at the Theatre National Populaire.

The minor works of great drama-tists inevitably attract directors and actors who feel that proper performance will at last reveal the hidden glitter of long-cobwebbed jewels. This challenge appears to be irresistible. It drew Peter Brook, for example, to tackle "Titus Androncommonly held to be the worst of Shakespeare's tragedies. A play so poor that doubts persists as to whether all of it is from the pen of the Bard, it was gyrated into sen-sational theatrical life by Brook's consummate direction and by cast-ing Laurence Olivier and Vivian Leigh in its principal roles. It en-joyed immediate success at Stratford and in London and was imported to Paris for the Theatre des Nations festival as a showpiece of all-conquering direction. Its absence from subsequent Shakespeare repertories is significant.

The revived Marivaux comedy has its charms and has had its ardent admirers. The eminent critic. Jules Lemaitre, compared it to "Twelfth Night," though the only discernible similarity of the two is the fact that the heroines of both assume male attire. As Kenneth McKee, an American professor who has written a definitive study rivaux, points out, the exp tion is as complicated as that of Crebillon neoclassic tragedy.

Rightful Heir

Agis, the son of the deposed king of Sparta, has been entrusted to the philosopher Hermocrate, who has reared him in his academy. Leonide, the niece of the throne's usurper and now reigning princess, catches sight of the youth in the garden and falls in love with him. Learning that he is the rightful heir to the crown, she determines to restore him to power.

She and her young lady-in-waiting. Corine, disguised as men, beg to enroll as students in the philosopher's academy. As they discuss their plans, they are overheard by that customary servant, Arlequin. They bribe him for his silence and he aids them in their schemes.

When Hermocrate perceives Leonide's sex, she declares that she is in love with him and not his ward, and the old misogynist, flattered, alters his beware-of-women creed. Meanwhile, posing as a young man, she must pretend to be enamored of the philosopher's spinster sister, the guardian dragon of the domain.

These intrigues — with true love leading the path through the maze to final-curtain happiness — are illuminated with wit and grace. The plot is a bit cumbersome, but its author did not lean very heavily upon it. It is no more than crazy-quilt background before which his double-dealing marionettes execute their capricious capers.

Wild Re-Editing

Certain directors of late have taken to wildy re-editing the classics, maintaining that by imposing upon them modern dress and hints of contemporary political whoopde-do, they are bringing them closer to present-day audiences. What they are actually doing is cheating their audiences, luring them with the promise of a famous play and then raising the curtain on a lamentable parody of it. This very season the Comedie-Française disclosed a "Britannicus" that was indistinguishable from "Springrime for Hitler," and elsewhere a Mari-vaux comedy was remodeled into an imitation of a Pirandello searchfor-self-identity guessing game.

An 18th-century fantasy of commedia dell'arte roots. "Le Triomphe de l'Amour" would suffer quick demise under such distortion, and Yves Gasc, who is responsible for the current staging, has mercifully refrained from enlisting Leonide and Corine as trendy members of the cocaine jet set with rock-and-roll musical accompaniment and a broad suggestion that the restoration of Agis to the throne represents the Russian Revplution.

In praise of footlight magic,

Giraudoux wrote: "Like those Japanese cutouts which are nothing but paper, I, who thought I was nothing but paper, sometimes became a chrysanthemum in Jouvet's swimming pool." torial fingerprints.

Gase has visited no disturbing modern "improvements" on Marivaux, but his staging, despite the bright interplay of Fanny Delbrice's Leonide Raymond Acquaviva's Agis. Dominique Constanza's pert Corine and Michel Aumont's grumbling Hermocrate, is uninspired. It scampers hither and yon, but it never takes off. The present playing of the fragile piece is in slow motion.

This impression is strengthened by extending the evening to include a lackluster revival of Alfred de Musset's playlet, "Un Caprice," which has a topical women's liberation message in its depiction of an ill-treated wife. In its latest production it has lost its effervescence and progresses so leisurely that it appears in need of an oxygen mask.

Summer 'Aida' Getting As Good as the Popcorn

By William Weaver

end of its season, has to face the problem of summer opera and the open-air season at the Baths of Caracalla. On the one hand, the outdoor productions are immensely popular, especially with tourists; on the other hand, by the time July comes around, the theater has long since run out of money. Caracalla sells plenty of tickets, but all the same, it does cost something; and the Rome Opera's management has to decide whether to continue it, on a shoestring, or cut it out altogeth-

In the past, the decision has always been to keep the season going, even at an artistic sacrifice. Caracalla has usually meant tired old productions (and often tired old singers), flung onto the stage to keep the tourists happy, provided they are not real opera-lovers.
This year, the problem has been given a slightly different solution. The season has opened, and with, naturally, Verdi's "Aida," but the work has been given a new production and it is the only opera on the bill, alternating with a ballet eve-ning, a full-length "Sleeping Beauty," with the Rome company.

Beer and Hot Dogs

Of course, the atmosphere at Caracalla remains what it has always been: somewhere between big-league baseball and the county fair. Hawkers sell popcorn and ice cream (welcome in the blistering Roman heat). And you can buy beer and hot dogs between the acts. The audience is polyglot, but alert, and — except for a minority of Romans — remarkably silent. Applause comes at unexpected

Actually, the new staging, by Luciano Barbieri, is considerably restrained and sensitive. Scores of supers, of course, fill the vast Caracalla stage for the grand march, but the principals are also handled defuly and meaningfully. Attilio Colonello, the designer, has stripped away the old painted can-vas clutter, allowing the naked majesty of the ruins themselves to serve as the visual frame for Verdi's drama. An Exceptional End to an Exceptionally Good Season

By Eugenia Sheppard

DARIS, July 27 - Madame Gres ended what has been an exceptionally good Paris season with an exceptionally even collection. Her long-playing clients who never miss one of her openings smiled all the way down the two flights of stairs that lead from her salon to the Rue de la Paix.

Probably her greatest contribution for fall is a more cover-up, less formal version of that old white magic that her draped and revealing white jersey ball gowns have been creating for years. The new dress, much slimmer and with a kind of Roman toga drape, is the jewelry background of all time, per-fect for gold, rubies and emeralds or with nothing at all. It has a twin version in black with just as many possibilities.

Always loath to make conspicuous headlines. Madame Gres makes no drastic changes in the shape of her clothes and they're only slightly slimmer, broader through the shoulders and shorter skirted. Her fans know her style so well that they are quick to recognize the slightest difference and to applaud. One of their favorites at the opening was the all-purpose dress with the sleeve puffed at the shoulders and falling in open pleats to the elbows. She makes it in crepe and wool and with skirts that are either full or skinny.

More Capes

Madame Gres has always liked the swing of a cape and she makes more than usual this year. Most of them are double-face wool, like the gray that goes over a classic gray suit. She also creates a black cape three times as big. With a cape collar of black broadtail, it has a real

In another example, the suit charged that the Frankfurt office wired instructions to New York on Oct. 6, 1976, that the Nassau branch sell Frankfurt £6 million at a rate of $1.6660. The memorandum, written in 1976 by Paolo Cugnasca, an officer who reported to the Citibank senior vice president in charge of the international money market division, said that the parking of foreign-ex-change positions "should be kept as inconspicuous as possible" and should "under no circumstances" be identified as such.

[In response to the memoran-dum, F. Redi, the treasurer of Citi-

bank's London branch, discussed "the potential risk of correspondence which would make obvious the nature of the transaction" and expose the bank to a number of pitfalls. These included, he said, "severely upsetting" local central banks, "exposing ourselves to blackmail" by an unhappy staff member, and violating foreign-exchange limits. Then Mr. Redi posed the question: "What are the alternatives to avoiding a substantial reduction of foreign-exchange carnings in the institution?" The court papers indicate that Citibank officers held a number of meetings and exchanged a flurry of correspondence in the spring of 00,000 Deutsche marks for the surposes of reporting taxable income.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Gulf Oil to Pay U.S. $42.2 Million

Gulf Oil has entered a compromise agreement with the U.S. government to pay $42.2 million to the Treasury in settlement of Department of Energy allegations that Gulf overstated costs for crude oil acquired by its foreign affiliates. The agreement settles a case in which federal energy officials in April 1977, issued Gulf "a propries of proposed disch 1977 issued Gulf "a notice of proposed disallowance" of $79.6 million in costs. At that time the Federal Energy Administration charged that Gulf had overstated costs for crude acquired from affiliates in Venezuela, Ecuador, Colombia, Nigeria and Angola between August 1973 and May 1975. The White House, announcing the deal, called the agreement "unprecedented" saying this is the largest payment to be made by an oil company since the oil price enforcement program began in 1973. The company says the payment "will not adversely affect 1978 earnings since adequate provision was made in

Commonwealth Oil Gets Bid

Arabian Sesoil, a company representing a group of private investors headed by Roger Tamraz, has formally proposed to acquire an interest in Commonwealth Oil Refining, which is now in Chapter XI of the federal Bankruptcy Act. Arabian Seaoil would acquire all Commonwealth's business and assets, assume its outstanding convertible subordinated debentures and substitute on a share-for-share basis its common and preferred for Commonwealth's. Arabian Seaoil would at the time of the merger invest $50 million in cash in the new enterprise in exchange for $50 million principal amount of convertible notes. Arabian Seaoil would secure crude oil supplies for the business and pro-vide management assistance in operating

Commonwealth's Puerto Rico facilities. Banks Agree on Cross Shareholdings

Credit Suisse White Weld and First Boston have sucessfully concluded their negotiations (IHT July 18) to exchange cross shareholdings in each other. First Boston will hold 31 percent of the London-based CSWW whose name will now become Credit Suisse, First Boston Ltd. and the former CSWW will hold 1.1 million new shares of First Boston Inc., representing about 25 percent of the U.S. firm's enlarged equity. The value of each transaction is valued at about $30 million. Their accord provides for the acquisition of additional shares in the other with a view to maintaining an equal interest. The accord also calls for the "unification" of their international investment banking and securities activities, which means that First Boston's European operations will be merged into those of CSFB. Three members of each group will sit on the other's board.

Oxy Withdraws Bid for Husky Oil Occidental Petroleum has withdrawn its bid to acquire Husky Oil of Canada. On June 23, Oxy offi cially proposed acquiring at least 80 percent of Husky Oil through an exchange offer. However, on June 27, Alberta Gas Trunk Line announced it had increased its interest in Husky to 35 from 4 percent and said it had every intention of continuing to be a major shareholder in Husky. Subsequently, Petro-Canada, a government-owned company which had been bidding for Husky, called off its tender offer.

Surplus Up In Germany

FRANKFURT, July 27 (AP-DI)— West Germany's trade sur-plus climbed to 3.964 billion Deutsche marks in June from 3.04 billion DM in May, leaving it more than a billion DM above the level of June 1977, the federal statistics office announced today.

The outcome gave the nation a surplus of 18.843 billion DM on merchandise trade during the first half, up from 18.367 DM a year earlier despite a 13 percent increase in the value of the mark against the dollar since January 1977.

When the mark started its rapid climb many months ago, economists said it would only be a matter of time before West German products priced themselves out of many markets, but the June results seemed to call this theory into question. Imports have risen, as predicted, but exports have kept

Imports climbed 3.5 percent in the first six months, but exports also grew at virtually the same rate. In June, exports were 9.7-percent above June 1977, while imports rose only 5.9 percent. The preliminary surplus in the June current account was more striking than the trade surplus at 2.2 billion DM, compared to 800 million DM in May and 444 mil-lion DM in June 1977. The current account, which comprises goods, services and transfers, is normally weakest during the summer tourist season when massive amounts of marks are spent abroad. For the first six months, the current-account surplus widened to 7.8 billion DM from 5.5 billion a year

Philippines Puts Debt Payments At $1.04 Billion

MANILA, July 27 (AP-DJ) — Payments of interest and principal on the Philippines' foreign debt this year will exceed $1 billion, the central bank reports. As a result, the closely watched index of the nation's ability to borrow will reach its most forbidding level since

A regular quarterly report by the central bank lists outstanding for-eign debt as $6.98 billion on March 31 and projected 1978 debt pay-ments at $1.04 billion. Just three weeks ago, central bank governor Gregorio Licaros estimated that foreign debt had increased by June 30 to $7.21 billion.

The bank said the "debt burden" as of March 31 was equal to 18.7 percent of last year's foreign-ex-change receipts. The 1977 debt burden was only $727 million and the The third founder of the company is Ian Barron, 42, a top British computer expert who founded Computer Technology, the counratio of those payments to the pre-vious year's foreign-exchange receipts was only 14 percent.

This ratio is widely regarded as an indicator of the Philippines ability to borrow abroad. It is limited by law to a maximum of 20 percent. This year's projected level of 18.7 percent is the highest it has been since 1974, when it reached the legal limit.

Treasury to Raise

$11.5 Billion in Cash WASHINGTON, July 27 (Reuters) — The Treasury announced late yesterday it will raise $11.5 billion in new cash in the quarter ended in September.

It said it will sell $2.5 billion on Aug. 1 of three-year notes, $3 bil-lion in seven-year notes Aug. 2 and $1.5 billion in 30-year bonds Aug.

Treasury Undersecretary Anthony Solomon said the government has already raised $3.4 billion in the current quarter. Since the notes and bonds being sold next week represent $2.6 billion in new cash, he said, there will be another $5.5 billion to raise in this quarter.

He esitmated the Treasury will have to raise $21-to-$24 billion in the quarter ended in December.

U.S. Raises Productivity In Quarter

0.1% Rise Follows A Decline of 4.6%

WASHINGTON, July 27 (Reuters) — Productivity rose in the second quarter at a 0.1-percent seasonally adjusted annual rate, following a revised decline of 4.6 percent in the first quarter, the La-or Department reported today. The first-quarter decline had previously been put at 2.9 percent. The 4.6-percent decline was the steepest slide since the 1974 first quarter drop of 6.1 percent. Second-quarter unit labor costs umped 7.8 percent, compared with a first-quarter 17.4 percent. Output in the second quarter rose 8.8 percent, although this was largely offset by an 8.6-percent increase in the number of hours worked.

Nonfarm productivity rose 0.6 percent, following a 3.2-percent first-quarter drop, with output rising 10 percent and hours worked up 9.3 percent.

In manufacturing productivity rose 7.3 percent, with output rising 13.2 percent and hours worked 5.5 percent The department also said that major collective-bargaining settlements reached during the first half of this year provided for an average first-year wage increase of 8 per-cent and annual increases of 6.6 percent on average over the life of the contracts. Wage increases that exclude any cost-of-living pay boosts were gen-erally larger than those provided for in settlements last year. Meanwhile, Federal Reserve Board chairman William Miller told a House banking subcommittee that he does not think the economy should go into a recession and that there was " no desire" on the part of the Fed to bring that about. Asked about the prospects for interest rates and the administration's efforts to trim budget deficits, he said he sees the taking of pressure of monetary policy by more disciplined fiscal policy com-ing into play "but only later this year and early next year." He told reporters after testifying that he hopes to see interest rates peak out in the next few months. although he expects no major fluctuations over the rest of this year.

To others — including some in the intelligence community — Colby is the man who forced the CIA to go public; who gave up many of the "family jewels," the 693-page chronicle of the CIA's worst abuses both at home and abroad. Still others see Colby as a true hero; a believer in Colby as a true hero: a believer in intelligence conceived and enacted within the law, within the Constitution.

He is, by his own admission, a plain man who easily melts into a crowd. It is the gift of a successful spy. His background? He was rejected by West Point because of nearsightedness. Instead, he attended Princeton, where he waited on tables, served as an altar boy and "remained (socially) pretty much the outsider." Only in ROTC did he achieve prominence — as a cade tenter.

During World War II, a member of "Wild Bill" Donovan's elite OSS, Colby parachuted into France 10 weeks after D-Day to help organize the French Resistance movement behind German lines. It was this theory that would later cause internal dissension in the CIA when Colby, as director of Central Intelligence, would dismantle much of the counterintelligence appara-tus built up for decades by James Angleton.

"Honorable Men" follows
Colby's career from its OSS beginnings through stints in Norway, where in the early '50s he put to-gether so-called "stay-behind nets" of agents to operate in the case of a Russian takeover. Later in the '50s he moved to Italy, where he organized CIA support for the Christian Democratic party against the Communists. And in 1959 he was transferred to Vietnam, where he would spend 12 years as the CIA's Saigon station chief and also - on leave from the CIA - head the CORDS Pacific action program, of which Phoenix was a part.

the unfriendly world around us.
But, with the scandal of the Bay of Pigs, with the revelations about CIA's relations with the National Student Association, with Vietnam and Chile and Watergate, that consensus irreparably shattered."

Since his forced retirement from the CIA in November, 1975, Cobby has been one of this besieged agency's few defenders. You could see him, periodically, on network news interview shows, rationalizing the need for secrecy in a society that wanted the CIA to let it all hang out. Or you could watch him work the college circuit, standing in a nondescript Brooks Brothers suit on the speaker's podium, fielding nostile questions from students who considered Colby the arch-villain behind the anti-Viet Cong program called Phoenix.

And he stood there, answering unfriendly questions, defending the agency that had taken up most of his life and from which he had been removed, curtly, by Gerald Ford.

Gets Freedom Medal WASHINGTON, July 27 (UPI)

- President Carter yesterday pre-sented the Presidential Medal of Freedom to Arthur J. Goldberg for his "humanitarian pursuits in the widest possible range." Mr. Goldberg was labor secretary under President John F. Kennedy and served as a Supreme Court justice and ambassador to the United Nations during the 1960s.

Recently, Mr. Goldberg represented the United States at the Belgrade conference to review the implementation of the Helsinki accords, particularly in the human rights field.

On the diagramed deal, a one no-trump opening and a Stayman re-sponse led to three no-trump, a slightly ambitious contract. South should perhaps have rested in two no-trump, but he was tempted by his five-card suit and three aces.

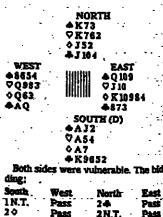

A diamond lead would have left South with poor prospects, but the diamonds happened to be on his right and the lead was a heart. He won with the ace in his hand, crossed to the spade king and led the club jack for a finesse. If this had succeeded, he would have been almost sure of nine tricks, but West produced the queen.

A diamond shift would still have been effective, but the position was very hard for West to judge and he persevered with hearts,

South ducked, giving the defense a third chance to play diamonds. East took it, and the result was down three. The defense scored the whole diamond suit before the declarer could collect any club tricks.

Taking the heart king instead of "to ducking would have made the clubs" score before the diamonds, and East-West could only have taken four tricks.

Pass

West led the heart three.

At Los Angeles. Steve Garvey hit a bases-loaded home run in the third inning and Dave Lopes added a three-run inside-the-park shot in the fourth to power Los Angeles to an 8-2 defeat of Chicago. The runs carried Burt Hooton to his fourth straight victory. Dave Roberts left in the fourth after yielding seven runs to take his fifth loss in nine decisions. Roberts loaded the bases on walks to Hooton, Reggie Smith and Ron Cey before Garvey's homer, his 13th of the season and his third career grand slam.

Astros 5, Expos 0

At Houston, Joe Niekro pitched a four-hitter and drove in two runs with a single and double, while Bob Watson and Enos Cabell hit home runs to lead Houston to a 5-0 triumph over Montreal. Watson drilled his 11th home run over the center field wall off loser Ross Grimsley, 12-8, to give Houston's sixth-inning sacrifice fly scored Cabell, who had tripled.

Braves 4, Phillies 2

At Philadelphia, Phil Niekro continued his mastery of Philadel his and contributed a single during a decisive two-run fourth inning in pitching Atlanta to a 4-2 victory over the National League East leaders. Niekro, who is 4-0 this sea-son against Philadelphia and 8-2 over the past three years, raised his record to 12-10 by spacing eight eight and walked two in pitching hits and blanking the Phillies over his first complete game of the seathe last seven innings.

Rose Doubles to Extend Hitting Streak

By Al Harvin

NEW YORK, July 27 (NYT) -With Tommy Holmes modern National League record safely behind him, all Pete Rose had to do yesterday was extend his league mark and that is just what he did at Shea Stadium, with a fifth-inning double that was one of the two Cincinnati highlights in the Reds' 12-3 loss to the New York Mets.

Rose got the hit that extended his hitting streak to 39 games on a 2.2 pitch from Nino Espinosa. The hall bounced past Joel Youngblood in right-center field and caromed as high as $19 million. Roy Boe, owner of the Nets, has been negotiating with former Madison Square Garden president Alar Cohen, who is representing Joseph Taub of Tenafly, N.J. "I have been advised that an agreement in principle concerning the sale of the Neis has been reached by Roy Boe and a group headed by Joseph Taub and represented by Alan

Daniels, Ex-Pitcher, Is Sentenced to Jail

LOS ANGELES, July 27 (AP) -Former major league pitcher Ben-me Daniels Jr. was sentenced yeslerday to up to 10 years in prison for misappropriating $107,000 while coordinating a federal employment training program.

Daniels, 40, directed the program at Martin Luther King Jr. Hospital. In the late 1950s and 1960s, he pitched for the American Washington Senators and the National League Pittsburgh Pirates. Daniels pleaded no contest

The only other bright spot in the game for the Reds was Johnny Bench's two-run home run, into the Mets' bull pen in the fourth inning. It was Bench's 13th homer of the season and the 300th of his 11-year career. He became only the second catcher among the 41 players who have hit more than 300 home runs in the major leagues. The other is Yogi Berra, who had 358.

Cobb's Mark Is Next

The only modern streaks standing between Rose and Joe DiMag-gio's 56-game major league record is the 40-game string of Ty Cobb of Detroit in 1911 and the 41-game streak of the old St. Louis Browns' George Sisler in 1922.

"I haven't gotten a hit off Carlton all year," said Rose. who has been hitless in 11 times at bat against the Philadelphia pitch-"I don't know what it is because I hit him real good last year."

Youngblood Leads Mets

Youngblood, a former Red, was the Mets' hero yesterday, knocking in five runs on a bases-loaded triple and a two-run home run. He became the first Met to knock in five runs in a game this year.

Espinosa, who is now 9-8, got Rose to ground out to third base in the first inning and walked him on four straight pitches in the third. When Rose came up in the fifth, he tried to bunt Espinosa's first pitch down the third-base line, but the ball went foul. The second and which Rose is pointing at now.

Simpson 'Just Another Player' for 49ers

By Bob Oates

SAN JOSE, Calif., July 27 — The number is the same, 32, but the colors are red and white and the paychecks - almost $50,000 a week will be coming out of San Francis-co instead of Buffalo. Almost everything, in fact, is different this year for O.J. Simpson.

• As a 49er, he is in a new conference, one that will book him against the Rams twice a year. · At the age of 31, after a Buffalo career in which he once gained 2,003 yards in one season, he has joined an organization that plans to throw him the ball more.

 And although he had to put up with a 1977 automobile last year, Simpson is in a new 1978 at last, one of Hertz's finest.

Indeed he has had two red Continental sedans in less than a week. The car he drove up from Los Angeles was so low on gas he had to

The biggest surprise, Simpson confesses, was in the 49er play-book. He was shocked to read that a San Francisco halfback is just another player.

"This is the first team I've played on that the emphasis wasn't on me," he says, noting that the Buffa-lo Bills, the USC Trojans and even his junior college coaches knew a good thing when they saw one.

He hopes the 49ers do, too, but for the moment he is submitting enthusiastically as usual to higher authority. The superstar is not one to rock the boat.

"This is OK for now," he says. 'We'll see how it goes." What the 49ers have in mind for their new halfback, who had become the National Football League's second-leading ground gainer of all time before he was traded to San Francisco in the offseason, is nothing less than revolutionary when you consider who he is. They intend to transfer him to the pass offense.

25 Times a Game

He will, of course, still be carrying the ball more often than he catches it because, in the nature of things, you can't throw to anyone too often in pro football. But hear coach Pete McCulley on his plans for this club:

"We'd like to get the ball in O.J.'s hands about 25 times a game. We're thinking about 15 runs and 10 passes.

In earlier years Simpson often ght one or two and ran it 25 or 30 times. But McCulley, who came in this year fom George Allen's 1977 Washington staff, was an architect of the 1973-75 Baltimore offense, in which halfback Lydell Mitchell became Bert Jones' basic target, twice leading the league in receiving.

And in McCulley's plotting.

Simpson is in Mitchell's shoes, which was what stunned Simpson

2 Rams Return After Walkout

LOS ANGELES, July 27 - The Rams' revolving door spun again yesterday and All-Pro cornerback Monte Jackson and wide receiver Ron Jessie walked into training camp four days after they walked OUI.

At $500 a day, their brief absences cost each $2,000 in fines. Jessie had little to say and Jack-son even less. Jessie said he came back because "I had to. . . or not play anymore." Jackson declined comment, as he has since he left club headquarters at California State University Fullerton last weekend. There was no indication that either player had resolved his problems. Jackson reportedly vants to be traded to San Diego or New York, or retire at the age of 25. Jessie, 30, who has a year left on h is contract, wants more money.

Their return reduced the number of walkouts - and starters - missing. All-Pro linebacker Isiah Robertson left on Monday, to, as he put it, get his head together. And offensive tackle Doug France lest Monday night in another apparent contract dispute.

when he learned it in the 49er play-

"I like one thing about this," the all-time All-Pro halfback says. "I do want to catch more passes. In Buffalo I always felt they didn't throw to me enough."

McCulley: "It will help our whole pass attack to have O.J. out there on the same side with [split end] Gene Washington. It will give them [the defenses] a lot to think about. No Blocking Simpson: "I know Mitchell made it easier for Bert Jones. I hope this will make things easier for Jim

McCulley: "We won't expect Simpson to block, of course. We have a saying around here that the blockers block, the runners run, and the catchers catch. We'll have O.J. do two of the three and let the other folks block." The central assumption about

Simpson on his new team, which is training this month at San Jose State, is that, at 31, he is the player he was at 28. And to be truthful he looks it. The Olympian speed is still there, the years have put few marks on his familiar face and he is already at what he considers his best battle weight, 208. Moreover, he's still the magnet for more attention than any other football players gets. Once voted the most popular American male. Simpson has found again in San Jose that his fans — Hundreds of whom seem to be vacationing here this week - come in all sizes, shapes, ages, and colors. And as they did in Buffalo, they dog him everywhere from his dormitory room (where as one of the officially "senior" 49ers he is entitled to, and does, live alone) to the shower

Rare Excitement

Says Joe Thomas, the 49er general manager who in his 23-year pro football career has built champions at Baltimore, Miami and Minnesota: "O.J. is the most exciting thing that ever happened to any football club I've been around."

Among athletes, only Muhammad Ali is comparably feted. And, in fact, coach McCulley thinks first of Ali when asked if Simpson might be over the hill physically starting his 10th year in pro football.

"When people say NFL running backs are only good for five years." says McCulley, "they mean the or-dinary All-Americans. But O.J. is unique. He's never taken any punishment. That's because, like Ali, he's very hard to hit."

Simpson, possibly more realistic, says: "All the running backs I came up with 10 years ago, Larry Brown and the others, are gone. Add to that an injury and it's hard for me to judge how much I have left. Mother and father are warning me. I mean mother nature and father time. But truthfully, this week I feel like a rookie."

The knee injury required an operation last winter for cartilage removal. He appears to have come all the way back, defying those who say a knee operation invariably impedes a runner, at leas: slightly. McCulley: "O.J. is the exception to all the rules."

one that says ballplayers earning room.

$100,000 a year are jealous of those who get $730,000, Simpson's last McCulley: "You don't know athletes if you think they complain about what others make. They complain about what they make." Simpson: "When a team loses, you can point to any reason for it as Buffalo's writers last year pointed to Simpson's paycheck]. If we lose here, it will be said again. And again it won't be true. What you have to understand is that most good football players sincerely believe they're underpaid. I'm one of the few in football happy with his salary. For the first time last year I was finally paid what I was worth." son brought from Buffalo might be his cheerfulness and optimism. In the year when the Bills were winning, it was often suggested he willed them to win with the force of his personality. As a 49er he is al-

Veterinarian In N.Y. Faces 6 Track Charges

MINEOLA, L.I., July 27 (NYT) A Nassau County Court judge yesterday dismissed five of 11 counts of an indictment against Dr. Mark Gerard, a veterinarian charged with switching the race horses Cinzano and Lebon in a idea to holiday in picturesque old Quidicattick during the Festival of the Lobsters. I tagged along be-cause I had a crush on Brett, which bored her. Lobsters bored her, too. 'You're almost as boring as lobsters, dear," she told me.

Baker

She couldn't shake me that easy. If she was going to take up with some lobsterman and start carrying on in picturesque old Quidicattick, i wanted to be there to suffer and punch somebody's nose. Jake, who was never bored by any-thing, took Brett

the picturesque old streets to fish for dour but colorful old Yankee natives and caught seven on the first morning.
I tagged along but had a rotten time and didn't even get a bite. To make things worse, a well-oiled 225-pound woman tourist spilled her French fries on me while crossing the street and left ketchup stains on my pants.

The native children who sat in the streets hooting at tourists jeered at me and I offered to punch a few of them in their noses, but Brett told me that would be boring. I went back to the hotel to change pants and sulk, and on the way I was run down on the sidewalk by a

Afterward, I roamed the packed streets buying souvenir plates bearing the faces of various members of the Kennedy family and watching the canny natives marking up pric-es and estimating the net worth of each passing visitor.

New Yorker who was playing chicken on a 10-speed bicycle.

This is the signal for the start of Ouidicattick's Procession of the Plucked Tourist, in which a crude androgynous wooden figure laden with wallets is carried through the town while being plucked down to its splinters by urchins and mer-chants. The fevered excitement created by this intensely spiritual dis-play infects the natives, who fall upon their visitors with joyous cries of glee and avarice.

Jake took Brett into the picturesque old streets to fish for empty beer cans and came back with a full creel and we took them out in the car and threw them on the natives' nose.

TEW YORK — It was Jake's lawns and under the cars of other visitors until Brett fell in love with a T-shirt vendor and ran away with him to get a sunburn.

Jake and I followed them to the beach and Jake fished in the ocean and caught three plastic milk bottles. I had a rotten time and three tourists in a beach buggy drove by and sprayed Diet-Cola all over my Princeton alumni journal.

To make matters worse, Brett went back to town and fell in love with Caleb, the lobsterdor. His reputation had attracted thousands into Quidicattick. He had fought the brave lobsters in the most famous rings of Maine and had boasted that in this afternoon's crustaceanida he would face five two-and-a-half-pounders mano-a-

His craggy New England charm infuriated me, but Brett said not to be boring. No woman could resist a lobsterdor, she said. I felt rotten and suicidal and sunburned, and when Jake suggested I join him in the famous Running of the Lobsters. I threw caution to the winds and plunged into the swirling mob.

The scene was pandemonium as the lobsters were released into the streets for the run to their rendezyous with the lobsterdors. Jake, who understood about the fishing but not about the lobsters, lost his footing in the crowd and the heel of his tennis shoe was clawed by a rampaging three-pounder. It infuriated me and I punched the threepounder in the nose and would have punished him with short blows to the carapace, but Jake told me not to be boring.

I didn't go to the ring but went off with a dour old Yankee extortionist who promised to sell me some empty beer cans which I could use to impress Brett with my skill as a fisherman. Jake told me Caleb killed all five of his lobsters with such bravery and grace that the town selectmen awarded him two claws and a tail, which he sold to Brett at half the market price.

Afterward, the three of us ate them, but Jake took the biggest claw, and it made me furious with him, and Brett punched me in the nose. Under the historic old Quidicattick sunset, merchants pleaded with me not to leave with money in my purse. The sun also rises historically, they wheedled. I could have punched them all in the The fact that the 32 grandchildren of a Milwaukee rabbi follow the ancient Torah and

Rabbis Twerski: Allegiance to the Past

By Israel Shenker

MILWAUKEE (NYT) — Rabbi Jacob Twerski and his wife. Leah, had five children, and Shloime, Motel, Shea, Aaron and Michel all became rabbis. The sons all married. All their sons became rabbis, or are now studying for the rabbinate; all the daughters married rabbis, or are preparing to marry rabbis.

Of course, the world is unpredictable. The fact that 32 grandchildren of a Milwaukee rabbi follow the ancient Torah and all males dress in the black Hasidic garb of 19th-century Poland is no guarantee of the future. America has a way of inventing tradition each morning and erasing the past by nightfall.

Devout believers such as the Twerskis emerge daily from the insular security of their homes, from the millennial laws and observances of Bible and Talmud, into a troubling world unable to comprehend the sway of Orthodoxy.

Knowing how difficult life is for rabbis, Jacob Twerski made sure his children got secular as well as religious training. Shloime, 55, who runs Denver's Talmudic Research Institute, studied philosophy at the University of Chicago. Motel, 53, works as an accountant in New York. Shea. 47, is a psychiatrist at Pittsburgh's St. Francis General Hospital. Aaron, 39, is acting dean of Hofstra University's law school. His twin, Michel, who succeeded his father as rabbi of Beth Jehudah synagogue here, has a degree in psychology.

As the sons go about their work, not only their dress but their questions, their responses, their attitudes to life trumpet allegiances to an older world.

Why should 20th-century people obey rabbinical strictures that seem arbitrary and heed reasons that appear unreasonable? Why should they submit to the demands of faith, rejecting the nuclear family and finding the joy of their days in the law of their life: small families, small blessings; large families, large blessings?

Adding a Candle

Shea remembers his mother adding a candle to the Sabbath lights for each of her children, thus suggesting that children made the home

"In Yiddish there's an expression, 'Every child brings its own good fortune'," said Aaron. "Each soul is hewn from the heavenly throne. a portion of godliness. Of course, there are financial problems. But as we say in grace after meals, 'God sustains the world.' If he sustains everyone, he'll sustain me, too."

"There are no disadvantages," suggested Shloime. "God's greatest blessing is children. The only problem is that you have to support them. It's a problem, not a disadvantage."

Birth control is usually frowned on by the Orthodox, who teet bound by the Biblical injunction to increase and multiply. "We have to adjust ourselves to the Bible, not the Bible to us," said Shea.

The Twerskis and their relatives sometimes seem determined to save Judaism all on their own, though when members of his congregation consult him about birth control, Michel often seeks advice from doctors.

"If a woman stays at home, her role is denigrated — she's considered a slave," said his wife, Feige. "Today one is almost brainwashed, and it's hard to sift out and shut out the world. It requires an almost superhuman effort to think things out for oneself.

"What I want out of life. I'm getting out of life — a sense of knowing that I'm achieving what I was created for on this earth," she said. "For me that's mostly in home and children, (ashioning future). generations and having an impact on the future. Beyond that, all is

Man's World

"It bothers me when I see friends trying to get into a man's world," she said, "and to me it's insignificant compared to what we have in life. For a woman to become an executive — what lives on after it? What mark does she leave on eternity? With children and home you leave a mark on a human being, not on papers or an office." The Twerskis do not leave the choice of spouses to chance or love.

Children do not go out on dates; all marriages are arranged.

At age 11. Jacob was officially engaged to Leah, who was 9, and they did not meet until their wedding day. When it was time for them to marry, he moved to her home in Poland from his native village of Gornostaipol, in Russia. In 1928, the family moved to Milwaukee. Before his death in 1973, at age 74, Jacob was asked how he liked Milwaukee. To tell you the honest truth," he replied, "I never lived there You say I nater left Gornostaipol." there. You see, I never left Gornostaipol."

In the New World, some practices have changed, or as Michel put it: "You can have a totally arranged marriage, where nobody sees nobody, or you can have a limited, not overindulgent exposure. I saw

"Three, to be exact." said Feige. "Our parents were sitting close by." said her husband. "If Feige had decided she didn't want to marry me, it would have posed a problem for me, but not for her her father would not have forced her to marry me."

Ten Generations

By tradition, Twerskis for 10 or more generations have sought husbands and wives who are rabbis or are from rabbinical families. Noted Michel: "Whatever the rabbis will ultimately be — accountants, engineers - that's really secondary. The reason we seek rabbis for husbands - and the girls understand it - is because of the intensity of Torah life. You can't travel anywhere unless you have some vehicle, and this is our vehicle.'

"Like the Salisburys of England, the Twerskis have bred true for countless generations," said Leonard L. Loeb, a lawyer who is head of the American Bar Association's family law section and a member of the Beth Jehudah congregation.

"If anyone had told me 10 years ago I'd be involved with a rabbi who wears Hasidic dress, I wouldn't have believed it," Loeb said. "But I don't know any people who are more charitable, who give more of themselves, than Michel and Feige. The Twerskis bless our Twerskis from Poland spell their name with a final "i," those from Russia with a final "y." Jacob Twersky changed the spelling when he arrived in Poland. In both guises. Twerskis are descended from the 18th-century Baal Shem Tov, Master of the Good Name, who founded Hasidism and its practice of joyful piety, and they are related to the leaders of the Bobover, Lubavitch and Satmar sects.

PEOPLE: Tenant Kefuses to Q. Liberace's Museum' Tenant Refuses to Quit

Liberace has just laid out something in excess of $100,000 for an old suburban mansion in Milwaukee to convert into a museum for his collection of musical memorabilia, but he has a problem. The former owner, who still lives in the 82-year-old mansion as a rentpaying tenant, won't move. Abe Austin, who is the same age as the house, says he's entitled to stay there as long as he can manage his own affairs. Liberace says that no effort will be made to put him out - that, in fact, he wants Austin treated as respectfully as Liberace's own 85-year-old mother. All of which presumably means the collection will have to wait a while. longer for a home.

Richard Nixon thinks that the Carter administration "is lousing up on so many things that we Republicans ought to have a great chance for a comeback" in 1980. Rep. Robert H. Michel. recuperating from a museing attack, reported that he had received a get-well call from Nixon in which the former president also mentioned the case of Dr. Peter G. Bourne, who resigned as President Carter's chief adviser on drug abuse after admit-ting that he had written a fictitious name on a sedative prescription for an aide. Michel, an Illinois Republican, quoted Nixon as saying, "Gosh, how bad can it get when the very one you've got close to you in the White House to remedy the situation is doing it himself?

Newfoundland, one of Canada's most pro-monarchist regions; has welcomed Queen Elizabeth at the start of a 12-day tour of Canada. Making her third visit to Canada in two years, the queen will visit small communities in Newfoundland and the prairie provinces of Saskutchewan and Alberta. While in Alberta, she will open the 11th Commonwealth Games in Edmonton. She was accompanied to St. John's, the capital of Newfoundland, by her husband, Prince Philin, and two of her three sons, Prince Andrew and Prince Edward.

Gayatri Devi, the former maharani of Jaipur, has paid nearly $2 million in fines and regained possession of a $1,250 gold parrot perch and more than $17 million worth of gold ornaments, bullion, silver and jewels she allegedly concealed in an effort, in 1975, to violate Indian laws restricting own, franci
